

The idea

The acceleration of changes and the globalization of markets require new marketing strategies as well as a different approach to the market. EDiS' basic idea is to create a pool of cooperation for the examination, purchasing and distributing of technical products.

EDiS

consists of a pool of European companies which, though operating separately in their own countries, share their know-how, specialisation, technical assistance and co-operation. The aim is to offer the best standard products and an accurate research: The global critical approach plays a determinant role.
